"There is a pressing need for a growth-oriented recruitment and skilling framework to address the challenges of youth unemployment. Budget 2024 should focus on reforming the Goods and Services Tax (GST) structure, including rationalising tax rates, simplifying compliance procedures, and addressing issues related to input tax credits. Streamlining and the introduction of tax holidays and enhanced input credits can boost investment in the sector. Budget 2024 should also prioritise investments in infrastructure projects, including roads, railways, and ports, to improve connectivity across the state and attract investments in manufacturing and logistics. Additionally, the budget can encourage public-private partnerships and provide incentives for

The government has done an excellent job in recent years in bringing down the fiscal deficit. We expect the FM to stay the course in FY25 and FY26 and not deviate from the glide path in this regard. The government has also done a good job in containing the revenue deficit in the last couple of years. We expect the FM to continue with the same in the upcoming Budget. The government has also been focusing on capex in the last couple of years and we expect the FM to continue with the same in the upcoming Budget. Capex has been a key driver of economic growth in the last couple of years and we expect the FM to continue with the same in the upcoming Budget. "In the upcoming Union Budget, the significant industry trade-offs anticipated include balancing investments in cutting-edge technologies and the integration of sustainability within infrastructure projects. The government must also prioritise critical, with increased investments in AI, machine learning, and blockchain needed to revolutionise farming practices, enhance supply chain efficiency, and improve market access for farmers. Additionally, there is a need to balance environmental protection and attract young entrepreneurs.

Establishing sandboxes for research and development centres can provide a controlled environment for testing innovative solutions, while tax incentives and grants for farmers and agribusinesses

Budget 2024 Expectations Live: Investment in digital infrastructure is not easy, recognising reliable internet connectivity as a fundamental right is a step in the right direction. Initiatives like BharatNet must be expanded to provide sustainable farming practices and climate-resilient technologies can encourage more young people to consider agriculture as a viable career.

These measures will not only support the agritech industry's growth but also contribute to a more sustainable and resilient agricultural sector, benefiting both the agriculture industry and the broader economy."

"In the upcoming Union Budget, the Indian government should prioritise comprehensive support for the manufacturing of electronics, including the television industry. While mobile manufacturing has seen significant growth, the production of the TV manufacturing has not been the same. Budget-making considering nearly USD 15 billion to the economy. The long-term benefits of such support would be substantial, fostering a robust ecosystem to provide alternative manufacturing incentives particularly for small TVs.

Additionally, the allocation of the larger than 32 inches under the 125 slab for luxury goods is outdated. Televisions are no longer considered luxury items but essential household appliances. Reducing the GST classification would make TVs more affordable, boosting the sector and making these essential devices accessible to a broader population.

Furthermore, the industry heavily relies on imports for critical components like display panels, semiconductors, and printed circuit boards (PCBs). Reducing import duties on these components would lower the manufacturing costs. This dependence exposes the industry to geopolitical tensions and supply chain disruptions. Therefore, it is crucial for the government to implement policies to establish semiconductor manufacturing in India, expanding these projects and focusing on developing a local supply chain for essential components. This strategic approach will enhance the industry's resilience, supply chain, and strengthen India's electronics manufacturing ecosystem.

"The Union Budget 2024 is expected to focus on the IT and ITeS (Information Technology and Information Technology Enabled Services) sectors, which are crucial drivers of India's economic growth. To continue to be a hub to achieve these aspirational and ambitious goals, the government must address key issues in the sector. Being a tech-driven economy, keeping in mind the ongoing initiatives for the tech sector and the forthcoming Digital India Act, the following issues and expectations from the Budget are key to India's growth.

Tax Incentives: Given the recently released Report of India's G20 Task Force on Digital Economy, the Budget 2024 is expected to continue supporting India's EPI, including StartUps, by providing tax incentives and exemptions to encourage growth and investments.

The Budget is expected to increase the outlay for the SEZ scheme to address underperformance by providing tax benefits, leasing or rent-a-developed space, and streamlining processes. It is widely anticipated that the Budget will have an enhanced focus for Artificial Intelligence (AI) specifically and deep tech startups in general. The Budget is also expected to provide 'ease to do' tools and 'ease to work' incentives for StartUps, including R&D, and funding of AI applications in healthcare, education, and agriculture. The Budget is also expected to focus on the ease of doing business for StartUps such as the Startup India SaaS Fund Scheme, the Atal Innovation Mission and the Startup India Seed Fund Scheme. Additionally, the government may also consider policies and partnerships to develop tech R&D.

5. Cybersecurity is expected to remain a vital focus area for the government as we seen in the interim Budget where funds for cybersecurity were increased by 15% to Rs 400 crore from Rs 350 crore.

Budget 2024 Expectations Live: Ravi Kalra, Co-Founder of Vistaar

To address the forthcoming budget holds immense potential to catalyse growth and innovation in India's ecosystem. Industry fuels several challenges that require thoughtful policy interventions to overcome.

Firstly, the current GST structure imposes significant burdens, particularly on small businesses. Streamlining GST rates and simplifying compliance procedures can substantially reduce the burdens faced by high 18% taxes. Infrastructure development, including roads, railways, and ports, is crucial for improving logistics and accommodate the growth of the e-commerce sector. Emphasis on research and development, incentivising innovation in eco-friendly packaging and sustainable practices, aims to enhance consumer health and industry expectations. Digital transformation initiatives, such as expanding e-commerce infrastructure and promoting e-medicine pilot initiatives with low incentives and promoting rural market accessibility. Efforts to boost rural consumption through employment schemes and skill development underscore a proactive approach to support FMCG startups and established brands alike. Overall, the budget should aim to create a conducive environment for sustainable growth, addressing these multifaced enough challenges that promotes and infrastructure enhancements. Creating cluster programs for e-commerce logistics can help reduce operational costs and improve delivery efficiency, which is crucial for scaling and to grow a particular product category.

However, business should remain open to rebranding if simpler for people to obtain financing through banks and NBFCs. Such measures can help the FMCG sector navigate challenges and capitalise on emerging opportunities, fostering a more robust and competitive industry.

Budget 2024 Expectations Live: Indian Entrepreneurship Newsletter, Country Manager, Sahib

"As we anticipate the upcoming Union Budget of India, we look forward to forward-looking measures aimed at boosting industries. The funding could enhance infrastructure to handle larger data volumes and support the growth of data-driven businesses.

Additionally, tax incentives for companies investing in cybersecurity would be crucial to address the talent shortage. Lowering GST on cybersecurity services could make these solutions more affordable and accessible, encouraging broader adoption.

Introducing tax breaks for companies utilising B2C services could incentivise robust cybersecurity practices, ensuring businesses operating in our client base. Supporting the Indian cybersecurity industry can help create a more secure digital environment for all businesses.

Moreover, business should aim to create a more welcoming and simplified tax regime for startups. The Angel Tax, which has been a significant hurdle for many startups, should be abolished to encourage investment and foster innovation. By implementing these measures, the government can drive economic growth, enhance cybersecurity, and support the thriving startup ecosystem in India."

technological advancements. With such expansion, there is a projected surge in demand for skilled operators. This necessitates a substantial scaling up of training initiatives to meet industry demands. Targeted training programmes are crucial to harnessing this potential, promising substantial job creation opportunities. Government intervention is urgently needed to equip the youth with the requisite skills, fostering meaningful employment in the construction and concrete equipment sectors.

"India's focus on the National Infrastructure Pipeline (NIP) projects and its objective to bolster low-cost housing highlight the need for the upcoming budget to prioritize job creation through skill development initiatives. Addressing the reported shortage of skilled labour by the National Skill Development Corporation (NSDC) and promoting robust education and training programs are essential steps for ensuring a steady supply of skilled workers. This supports the growth of infrastructure and housing sectors and provides vast employment opportunities for India's burgeoning workforce. Government intervention in this regard will be pivotal in aligning skill development efforts with the burgeoning demands of the construction equipment industry, thus driving economic growth and prosperity."

Budget 2024 Expectations Live: Jyoti Bharadwaj, Founder of TeaFli, on budget 2024

"On the ongoing GST framework, companies committed to crafting wholesome beverages confront substantial challenges. The disparity in tax rates, where fruit-based drinks attract a modest 12% GST despite potential misuse of this classification by sugary or concentrated variants, while carbonated drinks face a hefty 40% tax (28% GST and 12% cess) irrespective of their health profile, strains margins. This discourages the pursuit of innovative, genuinely healthy beverage options and inadvertently promotes the proliferation of fruit-based or sugar-laden alternatives.

"Unlike progressive tax systems in nations such as Singapore and the UK, which levy taxes based on sugar content to foster healthier food choices, our rigid tax structure impedes the introduction of healthier carbonated alternatives by imposing uniform taxes. A reform that prioritizes nutritional value over broad categorizations within the GST system is imperative. Such a reform would empower companies to advance their mission of promoting public health through innovative, low-sugar beverages. By aligning tax incentives with consumer preferences and global health trends, this approach not only supports industry innovation but also facilitates a market shift towards genuinely health-conscious products."

Sunil Nyati of Swastika Investmart on upcoming budget

"The upcoming budget will continue to focus on economic reforms, with expectations of higher capital expenditure and infrastructure spending, all while maintaining fiscal discipline. This is facilitated by the government's increased fiscal space, thanks to the RBI's substantial dividend and strong GST collection numbers. The focus will remain on the green energy sector, defense, railways, housing, and manufacturing sectors. Additionally, measures targeting rural areas, such as rural infrastructure development and agricultural support, will be emphasized."

"To boost consumption in the economy, we can expect some relief for the middle class in terms of income tax. Investment sentiment is currently very strong, and it is crucial for the government to avoid decisions, such as hiking LTCG or STT, that could disturb the market mood."
